

NEW ARREST IN HALL-MILLS CASE

DISORDERS OCCUR IN MEXICAN RELIGIOUS SCRAP

VESTRY MAN-CHOIR SINGER ACCUSED AS ACCESSORY IN CASE

Negress Held As Material Witness In Probe

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Aug. 5.—Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, handling the Hall-Mills case, has ordered the arrest today of Ralph V. Gorsline, vestry man and choir singer and Mrs. Nellie Russell, negress.

Gorsline will be accused of being an accessory to the murder of the Rev. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, four years ago, Simpson said. He sang beside Mrs. Mills in the church where the dead pastor once preached. Senator Simpson will ask that the vestryman be held without bail.

The negro woman said at the first investigation into the tragedy that her neighbor Mrs. Jane Giosou "the pig woman" could not have been a witness to the murders because she was visiting her that same night. She is wanted as a material witness.

It was Mrs. Gibson, told a story of how on the night of the double murder, she had ridden a mule past the scene of the tragedy and saw a woman in gray bend over a body and two men standing beside her.

Gorsline was frequently mentioned four years ago, as the man who had spread to Mrs. Hall the news of her husband's liaison with the wife of the church sexton. The congregation had also received the story of their amorous pastor from his lips too, it was said.

He was questioned at the time but said on the night of the killing he was at the Y. M. C. A. in New Brunswick until 11 p. m. and had been driven home.

Not Herself

"I'm not my self, I'm my attorney," Mrs. Jordan Baker told a witness whom she was examining in a Worcester, Mass., court. Her defense blocked her husband's divorce suit.

YOUNG ATTORNEY IS LEADING DAVIS FOR KANSAS NOMINATION

Former Governor Is Trailing Opponent For
Same Office

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 5.—Forging ahead as additional returns came in from Kansas primary election, Donald Muir, young attorney today was leading former Governor Jonathan Davis in the Democratic gubernatorial contest. Muir's lead over Davis, who is attempting a political comeback following his acquittal on charges of selling pardons while in office, was close to 700 votes with more than half the state's precincts heard from. This was virtually the only change in the Kansas results.

In Missouri Senator George H. Williams, Republican incumbent, continued to pile up a big lead over his opponents in the senatorial race as did Harry B. Hawes on the Democratic side.

According to Mrs. Nellie Burge, president of the state W. C. T. U., that organization will support neither Williams or Hawes in the November election. Williams is opposed personally to the 18th amendment while Hawes favors modification of the Volstead act within the limits of the 18th amendment.

J. C. Walton, deposed governor of Oklahoma continued to fall behind in the Oklahoma Democratic Senatorial race with his opponent, Elmer Thomas holding a lead of approximately 10,000.

No Relief In Sight From Heat Wave As Humidity Shrouds Entire Country

By United Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—No relief came to the mid-west today from the wave of heat and humidity that shrouded the entire country yesterday.

Three deaths from heat prostrations were recorded in Chicago. The temperature went up twenty degrees to eighty-eight late yesterday in Chicago and continued nearly that high through the night. Although the thermometer has been higher this summer in the central part of the country, yesterday's humidity made the heat particularly unbearable with many deaths and prostrations recorded throughout the section. The mercury reached 100 in Dodge City, Kas., and Fort Worth, Tex.; 94 in Kansas City, Mo., and Salt Lake City; 92 in St. Louis, Des Moines, and Omaha and 90 in Indianapolis.

The weather bureau predicted partly cloudy weather for today but with little change in temperature.

Julius Mathieson, 35, Dedrich Tiegler, 45, and Gustave Hardner, 53, dropped dead from the heat while at work in Chicago. F. H. Ryan, 18, and a negro youth were drowned at city beaches.

Authorities today attributed a terrific explosion in a suburban fireworks factory to heat from the sun.

The explosion which seriously injured two men, wrecked the plant of the Weigand Fireworks Company in Franklin Park, near Chicago and shattered nearly every window in the village, occurred late yesterday.

Albert Redda, 28, and Michael Cassulo, 16, employees were in a dangerous condition today from burns and possible internal injuries. Both were thrown out of the building in which they were working by the detonation.

CRIME DICTATOR OF CANTON BEGINS JOB OF CLEANING CITY

McDermott Fails To Surrender To Chicago
Police

CANTON, O., Aug. 5.—Joseph R. Roach, Chicago, noted criminal prosecutor hired by Canton citizens as special counsel to assist acting Chief of Police, Earl Hexamer in clearing the city of vice, started today his task of gathering evidence to place before a grand jury.

"Preliminary information now in my hands shows there was a continuous conspiracy to violate the Volstead act," Roach said. "Out of this conspiracy, to my mind, grew the murder of Don Mellett."

"There are threats from the Canton underworld to thwart the investigation by exposing prominent men as patrons of the city's bootleggers," said Roach. "But I am not interested in persons. What I am here for is to get the guilty in jail."

Search for Pat McDermott, believed to know who murdered Mellett, turned to Chicago with information that he headed that way with two other men last Thursday, well supplied with money drawn from a bank here.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Patrick E. McDermott, sought in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton Ohio publisher had not surrendered to Chicago police early today. It was reported yesterday that McDermott, through alleged underworld connections in Chicago, would give himself up here and return to Canton.

SPOONING O. K. BUT IT DEPENDS WHERE

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Spooning—"the old fashioned kind"—is now a lawful diversion in two of Chicago's parks and a crime in a third.

"Spooning should be done in a wholesome atmosphere where romance comes naturally," Superintendent E. H. Johnson of Lincoln Park said in lifting the ban upon park love-making.

"There is no more wholesome or romantic place than Lincoln Park. Spooning done in such an atmosphere can only lead to good things."

The South Park authorities agreed with Johnson, but those of the west side were of an entirely different opinion.

"We must keep up the morality of the young people who frequent our parks," Captain William Stoker of the west side police declared. This cannot be done if we allow girls and boys to kiss and spoon as they desire when they come to our parks."

PREPARES RITES

JAMES LYON MUST DIE FOR MURDER

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 5.—James P. Lyons, of Havana, Ohio, must die in the electric chair for the murder of Frank McGrath, Norwalk express agent, the court of appeals here decided today.

Judge Wade Cushing, Cincinnati and Judge Lewis B. Houck, Mt. Vernon, concurred in a written opinion that Lyons was given a fair trial and the court was justified in overruling a 17th pre-emptory challenge of the defense.

The appeals court today said it was proper for the state to offer evidence of other crimes the defendant had committed.

The court found that James Liles, juror, was not disqualified by accepting a box of cigars bet on the outcome of the case, prior to the trial.

STATE EXPERTS AT RED CROSS BOOTH

Theodore E. Beck, field representative, National Red Cross, Washington, D. C., Keith Louden, child hygiene expert, State Health Department, and Miss Tallman, State Department of Health nurse, are at the Greene County Red Cross tent, at the Fair, this week.

More Than Ten Thousand Attend Fair Opening

Clear blue skies, warm weather with a refreshing breeze, the harness races, a livestock display of unusual excellence, blue-blooded poultry and pedigreed cattle, fruits and vegetables that made the casual onlooker hungry, in fact, all the accessories that go with a festival of this kind—not forgetting the leather-lunged ballyhoo men—combined to lure to the Greene County Fair for the grand opening Wednesday, a crowd variously estimated at between 10,000 and 15,000 persons.

It is certain, whatever the correct figures of attendance may have been, that the grand stands were filled with cheering humanity, that men, women and children of all ages and types swarmed like a colony of ants through the various exhibits and that automobiles of every kind known to the trade were paraded over the parking spaces.

It was a good-natured, happy crowd out for an annual holiday in which the rich rubbed elbows with the poor and those who came in taxis or on foot had just as much chance for entertainment as those who came in expensive automobiles.

The motto of the fair management seems to have been "something doing every minute" and it appears to have been well observed.

The fair has enough attractions, apart from the racing, to keep the visitor busy for a couple of days at least. There is contrast everywhere. If you want to see the latest in cattle, stroll around to the cattle sheds. There they are—the Jerseys, all beautifully groomed with red ribbons, some with blue, and those who sport no ribbons at all, appear to be about as good as their rivals.

Judges seem to be everywhere at once. They are busy with hogs, with hens, with geese, with ve-tables, with embroidery and needle work. Then the skill of the Granges and the agricultural and horticultural exhibits cannot be overlooked.

There is much to attract the serious minded and then again there is much to lure those not so serious. For the fun lovers there are the side shows, and rides, and every kind that ingenuity has devised, resembling a big Coney Island.

The streets of the midway are dense and the business at all times flourishing. The cries shout to you to come and try your luck on a "beautiful, blue-eyed baby doll," or a teddy-bear, or cigars, umbrellas, rings, stick pins and other articles.

The fair is a perfect jumble of color and sound. A band is playing, cows are lowing, bulls bellowing, hens cackling, auto horns tooting, husky barkers shouting, all in a pleasing discordance.

The domestic fowl exhibits resound with echoes of the farm. It is one, long continuous cock-a-doodle-doo giving the impression that all the barnyards of the world have suddenly been combined into one.

The automobile exhibits this year are better than ever. The exhibit space is more roomy and the cars are shown to more advantage in the beautiful setting of colorful decorations. The many autos, handsome, new and shiny, helped to impress upon the throngs the great strides that have been made in the development of both pleasure and service vehicles.

The library exhibit is a new thing this year. The Red Cross continues to maintain its booth with first aid treatment always available and taking everything into consideration, fair board officials believe the successful opening Wednesday presages probably the most successful fair in years, both in point of attendance and number and high caliber of exhibits.

WARFARE WAGED IN MICHIGAN TO HALT CORN BORER DISASTER

LANSING, Mich., August 5.—A line of battle is being established along a 175-mile front in Michigan and around the northwest corner of Ohio to fight the advance of the European corn borer toward the granary of the middle west this summer.

Warfare of entomologists against the most destructive agricultural pest of modern times will be carried on with unlimited money and vigor but Michigan state experts who have studied the corn borer moth say the task of stopping its spread appears to be hopeless. Control methods developed are by no means completely satisfactory, it is said, and merely delay spread of the borer. Work is now being done in government laboratories to effect a new method of control.

While it is impossible to predict how long it will take for the borer to work its way into Indiana, Illinois and Iowa where a wide infection might threaten economic stability of the entire west, the moths spread from the east lake shore almost to the center of Michigan in five years and last year the quarantine area in this state was doubled. Similar conditions exist in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Forty government inspectors, assisted by state police, will maintain the quarantine in Michigan this year. The quarantine line runs from the southern point of Saginaw Bay to the Indiana state line. No corn of any sort or corn fodder is permitted to pass from the infected area into the non-quarantine area. In addition, squads of inspectors will maintain watch all summer for appearance of the pest in territory bordering the quarantine line.

Heavily infected fields will be burned and farmers instructed regarding methods of harvesting corn to slow the infection spread. It is impossible to stop additional infection of corn fields, however, because the borer moth will fly several miles from one field to another, ignoring quarantine lines and wishes of agricultural authorities with impunity. It is impossible to control conditions by lessening the corn acreage because experimentation has shown corn borers live in 212 different plants when there is no corn in the vicinity, returning to their natural habitat as soon as corn growing is resumed.

It is now virtually impossible to grow corn in Essex and Kent counties in Ontario where the infection is said to have originated, according to A. C. Carton, head of the state agricultural industry bureau, and a similar condition may develop in any other section where the borer is not controlled.

Congressional appropriations are being used in connection with state funds for the work this year. Plans are now being made for a more extensive campaign next year which will be financed in part by other middle western states. According to Carton, appropriation measures will be introduced in corn belt state legislatures next winter for the purpose, backed by the various state departments of agriculture on the theory it is more economical to fight the borer away from home than to await its advance.

PASTEURIZATION

As A Safeguard To Public Health

Milk is absolutely essential to the physical development of children and the health of adults. This is now a fully determined fact. Inasmuch as milk is a vital food for which there is no substitute it is imperative that safe milk be available at all times for the public.

What Pasteurization Is

Pasteurization of milk has been defined by the United States Department of Health in the various cities and states as the process by which milk is held for 30 minutes at temperatures ranging from 142 to 145 degrees fahrenheit and thereafter immediately cooled. This process does not take any of the essential elements out of the milk and does not in the least affect its fresh, rich flavor. Neither does pasteurization destroy all the natural helpful organisms such as lactic acid bacteria present in the milk. It is a simple process for making milk safe. Demand it in the milk you use.

What Proper Pasteurization Does

Proper pasteurization destroys any pathogenic organisms which might be present in milk and those bacteria causing tuberculosis, typhoid, scarlet fever and diptheria. Surveys have definitely proved that pasteurization has very largely reduced the infantile death rates caused by intestinal disturbances.

SUTTON-WOODWARD WEDDING WEDNESDAY

Her girlish beauty enhanced in her bridal gown of white crepe de chine and her veil of tulle, Miss Mildred Louise Sutton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sutton, was united in marriage with Mr. Samuel Robert Woodward, Dayton, at the home of her parents, S. Columbus St., Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Seventy-five guests were received to witness the vows by Mr. and Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. W. C. Sutton. The bride's mother wore white georgette and an orchid corsage.

Miss Florence Hartsook, Springfield Valley sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me" before the ceremony. She was accompanied by Miss Gertrude Hochwalt, Dayton, who played the wedding march from Lohengrin and continued soft strains during the ceremony. Miss Hartsook wore blue taffeta beaded with brilliant and Miss Hochwalt wore peach georgette over satin.

The bridal procession was led by the ring bearer, the bride's handsome young brother, "Dick" Sutton, dressed in a white linen suit and bearing the rings in a box. Next came the dainty flower girl, Juanita Dice, dressed in pink orquid and carrying a basket of flowers.

The maid of honor, Miss Marthalou Cramer, Dayton, walked alone. She wore pink georgette over satin, with a band of rhinestones in her hair. Her slippers and hose were silver, and she carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses.

The bride entered with her father who gave her in marriage. Her gown was fashioned with the flared skirt and tight bodice, the scalloped hem caught with ruffled rosettes. The skirt hung long on the sides and shorter in front. Her bouquet was formed in a shower of Angelus roses, valley lilies and orchids. Her veil, caught with orange blossoms, formed a train.

The bridal party was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his bestman, Mr. Philip Sutton, brother of the bride and the officiating clergyman, the Rev. F. W. Stanton, First M. E. Church.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized in the bower arranged in the archway dividing the living room and library. The house decorations combined pink and white, many varieties of lovely bloom being employed, with potted ferns and palms.

Refreshments were served after the ceremony. The bride's table was laid in the library, seating twelve. The centerpiece was formed by the huge wedding cake, with corsages at each girl's corner. Bouquets centered the other tables.

DAYTON RIVERDALE TEAM LEADS ANNUAL QUOT TOWNSHIP

Wading through all opposition without the loss of a single game, the two-man team of Bodiker and Ching Lowery, representing the Riverdale Quot Club, of Dayton, completed the first half of its matches in the annual inter-city quot tournament at the Greene County Fair Wednesday afternoon with a practically unsurmountable lead.

The Riverdale team won six games, taking three straight from the Dayton Shriners and Xenia Quot Club. Xenia, represented by Wagner, Devos and Merritt, won two from the Shrine to place second with two games won and four lost and the Shrine, third with one victory against five defeats.

The second and final round was scheduled for Thursday when six more games were played by each team. Riverdale is practically assured of the major portion of the purse of $25 which is divided into three moneys: first, $12.50; second, $7.50, and third, $5.

PRISONER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE IN JAIL

Mrs. Bertha Hamilton, Webb, 23, colored, Leach St., taken to Ohio Reformatory for Women at Marysville Wednesday by Sheriff Morris Sharp to begin a one to twenty year sentence for stabbing with intent to kill, is believed to have tried to commit suicide Tuesday night while confined in the County Jail.

Authorities, while not confirming the suicide report, admitted the woman had probably swallowed a small quantity of ground glass she had obtained from the wash room in the women's department of the jail. Bits of the pounded glass were found wedged in her teeth. Officials maintained a secretive attitude about the incident. Another prisoner is said to have informed Sheriff Sharp and Dr. P. D. Espey was summoned.

The physician gave her medicine when she became ill but she had entirely recovered Wednesday morning and was taken to the reformatory.

ARRESTED HERE FOR PORTSMOUTH POLICE

Charles A. Armsey, 30, said to be wanted in Scioto County for removal of mortgaged property, was taken into custody early Thursday morning by Patrolman Charles Thompson on a warrant issued by the Scioto County sheriff.

He is being held at Police Headquarters until Police Chief M. E. Graham can get into communication with the sheriff of that county and arrange for his return to ports-mouth.

It is alleged he purchased an auto from the Scioto County Motor Co., Portsmouth, and left without completing payments. Armsey denies this, claiming he has been sending installments regularly.

SUNDAY SERVICES LAST HERE BEFORE U. B. CONFERENCE

Communion and baptismal services, followed by reception of new members, have been arranged for Sunday morning at The United Brethren Church. Sunday may be the last public service as local pastor for the Rev. A. J. Furstenberger, as his return is subject to discretion of the conference.

Religious and social gathering will be held for the entire conference.

A SUGGESTION

As a citizen and tax payer of Xenia, O., for more than fifty years and interested unselfishly for the public good and helping to select the highest type of men for public office and being a bone dry independent Republican and speaking for no organization, faction or individual and having consulted no one, I would like to say that for the past year and one half I have become better acquainted with the duties of Sheriff's office.

We have had able and efficient men for sheriff and chief deputy for the past four years.

Mr. John Baughn has borne a large share of the hard work in that position and many times in dealing with the lawless element has taken his life in his hands, and because of his faithful and efficient services he is entitled to be promoted to the office of Sheriff. Mr. Tate, would make a good Sheriff, but I hardly think he is entitled to this office without first serving as Deputy. I know nothing of Mr. Baughn's plans or pre-elections pledges if any, but speaking for myself (and hoping that I am speaking for many others) I should like to see Mr. Baughn get the nomination at the coming Primary Aug. 10th and then (or before that matter) offer Mr. Tate the Deputyship of sheriff, and should he prove to be a worthy man in that office he would be sure of and thus have eight years in public election to the office of Sheriff, and thus have eight years in public office instead of possibly four years (but a remote possibility as it now appears to many.)

Let us put away all bitterness and hatred and substitute brotherly love and kindness and give Mr. Baughn, our confidence and votes on Aug. 10th.

Geo C. Stokes.
—Political Adv.

gation at the home of Walter Hess on the Upper Bellbrook Pike, Wednesday evening. Bernabe Natal, Porto Rico, will speak and the official board meeting will follow.

These services will be the last for the pastor, as he and his wife will start on their vacation August 12, not to return until Conference, August 25, at Euclid Ave., Church, Dayton. He has delayed his vacation on account of serving as presiding judge in the seventh precinct at the coming primary and to permit his attendance at the twenty-fifth annual Furstenberger reunion at Marion, August 15, during his vacation.

The Rev. Mr. Furstenberger has succeeded in the past year in bringing the membership of the local church up to more than 300 with a total constituency of more than 500 and an annual report of $6,500 as the congregational finances.

GETTING RICH IN LITERATURE

One has only to read current periodicals to get the idea that very little in the form of education or special fitness is necessary to make a success in literature, especially in short story writing or the production of scenarios.

The large number of so-called schools and individuals who are engaged in the business of teaching how to write for the literary market would indicate that there are plenty of folks gullible enough to take the advertisers at their word.

Just enough persons succeed in story writing to make it easy for many others to be deceived into the belief that they need only to take a few lessons by mail order to be able to write stories that will set the editors of the magazines hot on their trail for new master-pieces.

The same scheme is adopted in inducing persons to submit musical compositions, the authors of which are touted as coming composers of unquestioned ability and reputation—all for the purpose of getting a fat fee for placing the musical efforts on the "market."

It usually is the case that persons who advertise to help others to fame and fortune through short story writing have a hook to sell, or a series of lessons at a stiff price, all guaranteed to make editors of magazines and periodicals open their publications to their students' efforts.

Reading the advertisements that appear in many publications, one would think that the only requisite to becoming successful in writing, in newspaper correspondence, in cartoon work, or almost any other activity that is supposed to require special fitness, is to take a few lessons from the advertisers. Disappointment too often follows efforts to gain fame in this manner.

GETTING WHAT ONE WANTS

One of the thoughts emphasized by some psychologists, is that it is usually possible for people to get somewhere near what they want in this world. If people fail to attain their ends, it would be held that it is because they have failed to concentrate on them sufficiently and intelligently.

Of course reasonable limits would be admitted to this principle. If a commonplace young man sets out to be a millionaire, the chances are against him, even if he makes a big effort.

And yet it is true that if people will establish a certain object for their efforts, and work strenuously and intelligently to accomplish the same, they can commonly accomplish that purpose to some extent. But they must work hard, and they must understand and play the rules of the game. The hard work alone will not get them there, unless they show some special intelligence. One must have a certain degree of knowledge and sense to succeed in anything.

The majority of people accomplish only mediocre results, because they do not concentrate enough on their aims. If they set out for business success, they allow side issues to take up too much of their time, and their attention is dissipated.

The possibilities resulting from intelligent effort by anyone of average intelligence are very considerable. But people must somehow manage to show a thorough grasp of the situation they have to deal with.

Intelligence is not necessarily a special gift which comes to only a few. It comes commonly as the result of people being very wide awake, studying their work, making keen observations of the ways of the people and the characteristics of the kind of thing they are handling. They must fit themselves for large responsibilities and prove that they are capable of meeting them, so that someone in a position to give them promotion will conceive the idea that they have exceptional ability.

WHO WOULD GO BACK?

Americans can live on four hours labor a day, says Prof. Thomas N. Carver, of Harvard, if they live as they did fifty years ago. If they live up to present standards they must work eight or more hours a day.

That most people prefer the longer working day and the higher living standards is self-evident. Given the choice, few would sacrifice their luxuries and modern mode of living for a shorter working day.

What would it mean to go back to the standard of living of a half century ago?

There were no telephones, automobiles, electric lights, few trains and cars, no modern heating systems, more oil lamps than gas lights and many candles used for house illumination, no radios, cameras, phonographs and player pianos. Even the bicycle with chain drive was not introduced until 1834 and pneumatic tires were an innovation in 1890.

Just Folks

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

NO HONEY-GATHERER

When the bees are in the clover,
And a blue sky's bending over
This old world, aglow with sunshine

Just as far as I can see;
When the breezes are rustling
All the happiness of resting,
Though it's time to gather honey
Then I'm glad I'm not a bee.

There are some who flit for money
As the bee goes after honey,
There are splendors all around them

Which they never pause to see
They are slaves to Tyrant Duty,
But when summer spills her beauty
And makes days as fair as this

SOME NEW APRONS

The increasing popularity of electrical appliances which enable the housekeeper to cook at the dining table, has brought about a demand for dainty, out-of-the-ordinary aprons. The "chafing dish apron" has been an institution for many years; but now we have the "waftle iron apron," the "electric grill apron" and the breakfast apron which the fastidious housekeeper dons when she makes toast on her electric toaster in the morning, and coffee in her percolator. Here are some of the new models which I have lately seen for these uses:

Scrim Waftle Apron: This was made simply of a piece of scrim sixteen inches square, smoked onto a scrim strip (which formed the ties in the back), the smockling done in red, yellow and blue mackerelized cotton, with a foreign peasant effect. Mackerelized cotton was used to buttonhole the scrim square at sides and bottom edge, and the same cotton (all three colors) were used in cross-stitch to embroider three small waffles across the lower part of the square! The effect was very pretty and dainty.

Wash-Silk Grill Apron: White wash-silk was used to form the square, in this case. Lavender inch-wide old-fashioned "pinked" or picket-edged ribbon slightly gathered, had been cut in half lengthwise and used to decorate the edges at sides and bottom, and also run across the top of the pocket. The cut edge of the ribbon was covered, on the under side of the apron by silk binding tape, machine-stitched in place. This simple apron would be most effective if worn with a lavender dress. Or the maker could choose a "pinked" ribbon, for the decoration, which matched one of her dresses of some other color.

Breakfast Apron: Like the others above described, this was also a waist-apron. It was made of yellow dimity, in a solid color, square shape. A patch pocket in a yellow-and-lavender-pattern (floral) was made in the shape of a tea cup, buttonholed in place. A strip of the same gay cretonne about two inches wide decorated bottom and sides of the dimity square, and the ties and waistband were also of this cretonne.

The Theatre

"Broadway's approval is the measure of a play's success, because Broadway is the theater's highway which all feet tread in search of amusement," says Rachel Crothers, author of "A Lady's Virtue." "The rich, the poor—the intellectual and the ignorant, highbrow, lowbrow, artist and layman, old and young, fastidious and the gross—all must go to Broadway for their theater. Out of this conglomeration of minds and tastes a judgment sifts which is fair because it is the decision of a heterogeneous mass of people."

"From the most vulgar and banal, disgusting and panders so to the most intellectual output of the theater of the public, Mrs. Barrymore just returned to New York from Hollywood, where she and her husband have a beautiful home. 'We love the theater,' said Mrs. Barrymore, 'but I can't see how anyone can blame actors or actresses who stick to the films when the stage demands that they lower themselves and do and say such coarse and common things. There is nothing like that in motion pictures. The present trend of the stage is coarse in the extreme. That is not true of pictures.'"

Towering thirty-five stories above Broadway at Times Square, the new Paramount Theater, now in course of construction, will be the biggest theater in the world. The observation tower and great clock look down upon the theater center of the world. Thirty-three stories of the building will be given over to offices, the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation occupying the entire space from the fourth to the twelfth floors inclusive. The building is costing $10,700,000, the structure occupying the entire block fronting on Broadway between 43rd and 44th Sts.

tombs at present in excellent state of preservation. Their desiccation is due entirely to natural properties in the soil.

Several explanations of the phenomenon have been advanced, but the most credible one is that put forward by Professors P. V. Zecchini and A. G. Pardi of Padua in 1881. According to them, the earth of the tombs feeds itself to the generation of hydrogen-carbonate gas, which, affecting the bodies, envelops them in a parasitic mould, called "Hippa Bombicina," that absorbs the humors of the body and produces mummification.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

History of Xenia's Fire Department falls into five periods: First, the period when the city had no department; second, the period when there was only a bucket brigade, this lasting until 1837 or 1838; third, the period of the famous hand-pump days, when the water was pumped by hand power; fourth, the period of the "steamers," engines which threw water as it had never been thrown before in the city; and fifth, the period since the installation of the present system of waterworks.

Little is known of the fire department prior to 1837. Just fifty years before that time—1837—the state legislature passed an act allowing Xenia to borrow $5,000 to purchase fire-fighting apparatus and build an engine house.

The house stood on the northwest corner of the public square the city having a lease of a strip eighty feet wide across the north side of the square.

This was removed in the 50's and the fire house was then located on Green St. where it remained for many years.

Subsequently a provision was made for two fire-engine houses, or fire stations, one on Whitman Ave. and the other at Cincinnati Ave. and Second St., since discarded.

The present fire station on E. Main St. was completed in June, 1914, at a cost of $12,500. The second station, then known as No. 1, was an old brick structure, formerly used as a cooper shop, built before the Civil War. It is still standing. It was donated to the city for use as a fire station by Mr. Maynor.

The equipment of Station No. 1 included a ladder truck and one hose wagon. A hose wagon and a combination hose and chemical wagon were used at No. 2 station. There were four horses at No. 2 and two at No. 1.

East Side - West Side

—OF—

New York

By Jack O'Donnell

The race track season and the sucker season are synonymous in this city of sharps and flats.

When the races open on Long Island in the spring the slickers who follow the races come up from the South, Cuba and Mexico to live by their wits in the American metropolis. Glib of tongue, imaginative and excellent psychologists, in their own fashion, they find plenty of material on which to work in this mecca of mutts.

As a rule, these slickers work in pairs and the "middle class" hawks are their stamping grounds. Here they find strangers from the hinterland, unversed in the ways of the city slicker, gullible, in funds.

In one way or another they scrape up an acquaintance—a feat made easy by the fact that the average newcomer to New York is, perhaps, lonely and glad to talk to someone, especially if that someone appears to be a stranger like himself, is congenial and is stopping at the same hotel. And, take it from me, the slickers always are talky and congenial, even if they have only an imaginary room at the hotel.

About the second day the newcomer and his chance acquaintance are together the slicker is approached by another man, his pal, who acts in a mysteriously important manner. He calls his pal aside and whispers something in his ear. The other, aloud, thanks him profusely and then returns to his friend from the country.

"Just got an inside tip on the races," he confides. "That chap is an old friend of my father. He owns a string of horses and he has one running this afternoon which is sure to win. I'm going to bet a couple of hundred on it. That's the way to make money in this town—be on the inside."

If the man from the hinterland doesn't come to the front with a request to be "let in on the killing," the slicker doesn't urge him; in fact he will say no more about it until after the races when he will flash a phoney bank-roll and carelessly remark: "Made a big clean-up on that tip today. Hoss won at 20 to 1."

The sight of that inflated bank-roll naturally whets the appetite of the intended victim and nine times out of ten he will ask to be let in next day when his new-found friend gets another tip from the same source. If and when he does the slicker doesn't appear anxious to have him bet but says: "All right, if you wish to make a bet I'll be glad to place it for you. How much do you want to wager? I'm going to put down five hundred."

If the victim turns over only $100 the slicker feels well paid for his time, parts of three days. He pockets the money, of course, and the sucker never sees him again.

All of which once led Damon Runyon to remark: "You can take a hick out of the country but you can't take the country out of a hick."

There is a sports writer in this town who is making the gambling fraternity happy. This writer devotes most of his time and scribbles to the prize ring. He picks the fighters who, he believes, will win. He is wrong so often that the gamblers "cupper his bets" (bet on the one he thinks will lose) and they win so often that they are happy.

Today's Talk

SERVE YOURSELF AND SAVE

In walking down the street the other day I came across a sign which read: "CAFETERIA, Serve yourself and save."

I was struck by this significant sub-line. I thought: If we would only serve ourselves more we would save in a thousand ways.

Of course, when you serve yourself, you serve others, for you inspire in them that incentive which alone is essential for all success or happiness. We must educate ourselves. We must fortify ourselves. We must prepare ourselves as fine instruments that others may have the use of us.

Serve yourself—and you save. Nothing is truer. For the things you gain by your own efforts stay by you and become a part of you. And yet, you may keep giving away what you have accumulated—and still be very rich.

There are those who are so afraid that they will do something for themselves that they are unable to do anything for anyone else. The millionaire who delights in giving away to worthy causes, first had to get that wealth for himself.

And there is the other side. When you serve someone else you always serve yourself—and also save. You save a loyal friend in whom there is a world of wealth—an intermixture of faith, inspiration and love.

And if you get the habit of serving yourself, you know what you know. You are not dealing in something second hand. You are at it out at interest. You gain a profit but the principal is spread out.

Serve yourself—and save. And it is best that you figure it out in your own mind just how you can save most and serve best.

Vacationing at Home

Vacations may or may not be a success—depending largely on weather and other contingencies. Given her own choice, I am quite sure women would prefer to spend the same amount of time and money rearranging their homes. Now, wouldn't it be nice if husbands would give wives a chance to decide on the preference of vacationing at home.

The Gilded Rose

By May Christie

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN RIDGEWAY learns her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.

FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out. Rosilyn loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with Lydia Harbrook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying.

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to dinner.

She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together, while she will be with her beloved Landis.

Landis, finding himself alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more. Some hours later that evening, Rosilyn who is bewildered to find herself spending the evening in the company of Rupert Briscoe, sees her husband dancing with Lydia—in his eyes a look of rapture. She believes he has seen her but is too rude—or ashamed—to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a night-club, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

In Paris Van Vorst, realizing the reason for Lydia's sudden trip to America and hungering for her love, decides to use Marietta, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a plan. These two arrange to come to New York where Marietta is to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

Long after Rosilyn's return home Lydia, by a clever ruse persuades Landis to take her for a taxi ride to Jersey. There in the early dawn speeding through the country side his old infatuation asserts itself and he gathers the girl in his arms.

CHAPTER XXXVIII
Landis leaves the suite was wrapped in silence when Landis entered it. In the tiny entrance-hall, a subdued light burned. Like a man intoxicated, he stumbled into the sitting-room where daylight filtered through the shaded windows.

Had Rosilyn returned? Was she asleep? What would she think of this evening's work?

Well, wasn't it her own fault, for not turning up at the proper rendezvous? Hadn't she practically pushed him into Lydia Harbrook's arms?

And anyhow—come to think of it—what right had she to criticize his actions? She had as good as confessed to him that she had entered on this marriage contract solely for her own advancement. Briscoe and she between them had evidently arranged to dine alone somewhere, and so had 'let him down'.

Tripping over a footstool or cushion, he stifled a curse, his nerves aching.

Somewhere inside, a still small voice was whispering:— "Landis Ridgeway, you are weak and vacillating! Lydia has got back into her toils! Can't you be a man, and play the game with this unfortunate child who is your wife?"

He strode across the room and drew the curtains, flinging the windows wide. The soft air blew against his forehead, passed.

Then, quietly, he went to his wife's closed door, tried the handle and found it locked.

His lips curled whimsically. "Not wanted here."

Odd that she should have locked her door tonight! He had never crossed the threshold of that room, nor would he. They had their definite "understanding."

But the insinuation was something of an insult, wasn't it? As though he were a cad.

She evidently feared him and mistrusted him. No doubt, too, she was angry.

She would be angrier still—make jealous scenes, maybe—if by any chance she heard of the magic motor-ride with Lydia Harbrook.

But he had forgotten that she didn't care. Him. On their wedding night she very definitely had told him so. A marriage of convenience—on one side his social prestige—on the other her newly inherited wealth. A fair bargain, wasn't it?

And yet— He couldn't sleep here in the suite, somehow. In his present frame of mind, with the knowledge of the last few hours whirling like a delicious but forbidden dream inside his consciousness, he couldn't linger within the radius of his wife's presence—in the expensive rooms her money paid for—as her guest!

Lydia! Enchantment! Stolen ecstasies! Delight!

He lifted his hat and coat from the rack in the little hallway, and let himself out of the hotel suite quietly, walking down the four flights to the street. Neither his coming nor his going had been remarked by the night porter, who was somewhere in the kitchen regions, looking for refreshment.

"I'll get a bath and a couple of hours' sleep at the Club," reflected young Ridgeway as he strode away, the cool air blowing on his forehead.

How the hotel suite had stifled him! How the sudden consciousness of Rosilyn's money had pressed him down!

To have been bought—been trapped—by a girl's wealth! It was humiliating. Nay, more, it was contemptuous!

No link, beyond the legal tie, existed that could bind them. What had the pair in common? Not a single thought!

Tonight's companionship with Lydia had shown him, clearer than anything since his wedding day, what an insufferable bond the whole thing was.

It was significant of the latent generosity of Landis' character that not for one single moment did he blame his mother and her machinations.

He cursed himself for a traitorous cad, a paltry hanger-on. In this mood his club was reached. He bathed and shaved and then lay down in the hopes of wooing fugitive slumber.

But the noises of the waking city roused him. And with the rush of day, and a fuller realization of his queer, anomalous position, misery settled on him like a pall—misery that did not lift until, about eleven o'clock he was summoned to the telephone, and the thrill of Lydia Harbrook's voice, so gentle and cajoling that a man's pain must melt before its magic!

Tomorrow—Mama's Advice.

NEW ARREST IN HALL - MILLS CASE

DISORDERS OCCUR IN MEXICAN RELIGIOUS SCRAP

FIGHTING RESULTS IN TWO DEATHS AS CROWD DISPERSED

Protestant Pastor Will Preach As Test
Case

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 5.—Although the disorders are not regarded as serious, minor demonstrations are reported to be taking place throughout Mexico as the struggle between church and state settles into an uncompromising deadlock.

Catholics in Guadalajara have telegraphed the Episcopate here that two persons were killed and fifteen wounded in rioting Tuesday night at the church of St. Guadalupe when police and soldiers are said to have attempted to disperse a crowd. The report has not been confirmed from other sources.

There was excitement last night when 20,000 persons gathered in front of the Esperanza Iris Theater, clamoring for admittance to a debate on religious controversy between Luis Leon, secretary of agriculture and forestry, and Herra Lasso, a prominent Catholic attorney. Firemen were called to keep order and patrols of soldiers were instituted while traffic was cut off for three blocks about the building. When the theater doors were opened quiet was restored however.

The position of Protestant clergymen under the religious laws is expected to be clarified Sunday when William Evan Thomas, American minister of "The United Evangelical" church, will preach, according to one theory, that since the church does not include a confessional, the law should not apply.

It is expected that his act will precipitate a final disposition of the situation of Protestant ministers and their churches.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Indication that the Mexican Catholic boycott, staged in protest against the church laws, was becoming effective was given today in commerce department reports from the southern republic showing a "downward trend" in business and trade.

The slump has been noticeable only in the last two days. Department economic experts view continuance of the depression as inevitable if the Catholics continue their refusal to buy anything except absolute necessities.

SEEK AVIATOR WHO CARRIED WHISKEY

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 5.—Garfield Heights police today sought the pilot of an airplane which dropped in a vacant lot last night and was found to have two cases of whiskey aboard.

A. B. Gildeson of Lakewood claimed ownership of the airplane, police said, but denied any knowledge of the cargo. He said he loaned the airplane to a friend to make a flight to Chicago. He said a note in his mail box told him where to find the plane.

Marshall Harry Benson swore out a "John Doe" warrant for the arrest of the pilot.

ENDORSE GRISWOLD
FOR NOMINATION

COLUMBUS, Aug. 5.—The Ohio anti-saloon league has officially endorsed the candidacy of H. H. Griswold of Chardon for Republican nomination for attorney general.

Griswold in the 1923 legislature was speaker of the house of representatives and the anti-saloon league, in endorsing him, pointed out that he had been previously favorable to prohibition legislation.

It had been previously incorrectly reported that the league had designated Griswold as "unsatisfactory," along with his opponent, Edward Turner whom the league has been opposing as unfavorable to the dry cause.

EXHUME DOG BURIED

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Aug. 5.—Announcing that the impression had been given that the grave was for a baby, authorities of Spring Grove cemetery exhumed the body of "Betty Jane," 11-year-old poodle dog owned by Mrs. Ellis Powell and given a $100 burial.

SPOONING O. K. BUT IT DEPENDS WHERE

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Spoonng—"the old fashioned kind"—is now a lawful diversion in two of Chicago's parks and a crime in a third.

"Spoonng should be done in a wholesome atmosphere where romance comes naturally," Superintendent E. H. Johnson of Lincoln Park said in lifting the ban upon park love-making.

"There is no more wholesome or romantic place than Lincoln Park. Spoonng done in such an atmosphere can only lead to good things."

The South Park authorities agreed with Johnson, but those of the west side were of an entirely different opinion.

"We must keep up the morality of the young people who frequent our parks," Captain William Stoker of the west side police declared. This cannot be done if we allow girls and boys to kiss and spoon as they desire when they come to our parks."

PREPARES RITES

WEST UNION, O., Aug. 5.—Mrs. Gusta Shaffer, who shot and killed her husband in order to protect their 9-year-old daughter Doris from being beaten, made preparations today for his funeral. William Cooper, coroner, exonerated the wife in his verdict of "self defense."

CAUTION FOLLOWS
FRENZY ON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Speculators proceeded warily at the opening of the stock market today, a policy of watchful waiting supplanting the frenzy of the past few days.

As a result irregularity developed with first quotations. On a limited volume of trading most of the gains or losses in early sales were fractional.

No Relief In Sight From Heat Wave As Humidity Shrouds Entire Country

By United Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—No relief came to the mid-west today from the wave of heat and humidity that shrouded the entire country yesterday.

Three deaths from heat prostrations were recorded in Chicago. The temperature went up twenty degrees to eighty-eight late yesterday in Chicago and continued nearly that high through the night. Although the thermometer has been higher this summer in the central part of the country, yesterday's humidity made the heat particularly unbearable with many deaths and prostrations recorded throughout the section.

CRIME DICTATOR OF CANTON BEGINS JOB OF CLEANING CITY

McDermott Fails To Surrender To Chicago Police

CANTON, O., Aug. 5.—Joseph R. Roach, Chicago, noted criminal prosecutor hired by Canton citizens as special counsel to assist acting Chief of Police, Earl Hexamer in clearing the city of vice, started today his task of gathering evidence to place before a grand jury.

"Preliminary information now in my hands shows there was a continuous conspiracy to violate the Volstead act," Roach said. "Out of this conspiracy, to my mind, grew the murder of Don Mellett."

"There are threats from the Canton underworld to thwart the investigation by exposing prominent men as patrons of the city's bootleggers," said Roach. "But I am not interested in persons. What I am here for is to get the guilty in jail."

Search for Pat McDermott, believed to know who murdered Mellett, turned to Chicago with information that he headed that way with two other men last Thursday, well supplied with money drawn from a bank here.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Patrick E. McDermott, sought in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton Ohio publisher, had not surrendered to Chicago police early today. It was reported late yesterday that McDermott, through alleged underworld connections in Chicago, would give himself up here and return to Canton.

ALL TENNESSEE CANDIDATES
OPPOSE EVOLUTION TEACHING

Even Republican Reminds Voters He Prosecuted
Scopes—And Opponent Says He Knows
Nothing About It

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 5.—Tennessee goes to the state primaries today finding all leading candidates for governor supporting the law which prohibits the teaching of evolution in the public schools.

Gov. Austin Peay who signed the bill, has consistently reminded believers of that fact.

Treasurer McAllister, formidable opponent of the Governor for the Democratic nomination, has reminded the public that he drafted the anti-evolution law.

Not Herself

"I'm not my self, I'm my attorney," Mrs. Jordan Baker told a witness whom she was examining in a Worcester, Mass., court. Her defense blocked her husband's divorce suit.

YOUNG ATTORNEY IS LEADING DAVIS FOR KANSAS NOMINATION

Former Governor Is Trail
ing Opponent For
Same Office

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 5.—Forking ahead as additional returns came in from Kansas primary election, Donald Muir, young attorney today was leading former Governor Jonathan Davis in the Democratic gubernatorial contest.

Muir's lead over Davis, who is attempting a political comeback following his acquittal on charges of selling pardons while in office, was close to 700 votes with more than half the state's precincts heard from. This was virtually the only change in the Kansas results.

In Missouri Senator George H. Williams, Republican incumbent continued to pile up a big lead over his opponents in the senatorial race as did Harry B. Hawes on the Democratic side.

According to Mrs. Nellie Burge, president of the state W. C. T. U., that organization will support neither Williams or Hawes in the November election. Williams is opposed personally to the 18th amendment while Hawes favors modification of the Volstead act within the limits of the 18th amendment.

J. C. Walton, deposed governor of Oklahoma continued to fall behind in the Oklahoma Democratic Senatorial race with his opponent, Elmer Thomas holding a lead of approximately 10,000.

TWO WOMEN KILLED

LORAIN, O., Aug. 5.—Lorain county officials and the Lorain Chamber of Commerce today demanded elimination of a double grade crossing at Stop 26, Lake Road, following an accident at the crossing last night in which two women were killed and a man seriously injured.

The injured man is Charles Yerkes, 58, husband of Mrs. Yerkes and father of Viola. He is in Amherst Ohio Hospital in a dying condition.

The family lived at Mulberry Grove, Ill. They were killed when their machine was struck by a Lake Shore Electric baggage car.

Five white crosses already standing by the crossing mark it as one of the most dangerous in Northern Ohio.

TO PROBE RECORDS OF IOWA DOCTOR

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Aug. 5.—Investigation of the records of more than 5,000 doctors and druggists in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota was ordered today by Glenn A. Brunson, federal prohibition administrator for the three districts.

The move was made in an attempt to bring stricter observance of the prohibition laws and especially observance of the laws governing issuance of liquor prescriptions.

"The investigation will be made into the records of 3,500 doctors and 1,750 druggists," Brunson said.

VESTRY MAN-CHOIR SINGER ACCUSED AS ACCESSORY IN CASE

Negress Held As Material Witness In Probe

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Aug. 5.—Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, handling the Hall-Mills case, has ordered the arrest today of Ralph V. Gorsline, vestry man and choir singer and Mrs. Nellie Russell, negress.

Gorsline will be accused of being an accessory to the murder of the Rev. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, four years ago, Simpson said. He sang beside Mrs. Mills in the church where the dead pastor once preached.

Senator Simpson will ask that the vestryman be held without bail.

The negro woman said at the first investigation into the tragedy that her neighbor Mrs. Jane Giosou "the pig woman" could not have been a witness to the murders because she was visiting her that same night. She is wanted as a material witness.

It was Mrs. Gibson, told a story of how on the night of the double murder she had ridden a mule past the scene of the tragedy and saw a woman in gray bend over a body and two men standing beside her.

Gorsline was frequently mentioned four years ago, as the man who had spread to Mrs. Hall the news of her husband's liaison with the wife of the church sexton. The congregation had also received the story of their amorous pastor from his lips too, it was said.

He was questioned at the time but said on the night of the killing he was at the Y. M. C. A. in New Brunswick until 11 p. m. and had been driven home.

WARFARE WAGED IN MICHIGAN TO HALT CORN BORER DISASTER

LANSING, Mich., August 5.—A line of battle is being established along a 175-mile front in Michigan and around the northwest corner of Ohio to fight the advance of the European corn borer toward this summer.

Warfare of entomologists against the most destructive agricultural pest of modern times will be carried on with unlimited money and vigor but Michigan state experts who have studied the corn borer moth say the task of stopping its spread appears to be hopeless. Control methods developed are by no means completely satisfactory, it is said, and merely delay spread of the borer. Work is now being done in government laboratories to effect a new method of control.

While it is impossible to predict how long it will take for the borer to work its way into Indiana, Illinois and Iowa where a wide infection might threaten economic stability of the entire west, the moths spread from the east lake shore almost to the center of Michigan in five years and last year the quarantine area in this state was doubled. Similar conditions exist in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Forty government inspectors, assisted by state police, will maintain the quarantine in Michigan this year. The quarantine line runs from the southern point of Saginaw Bay to the Indiana state part by other middle western states. According to Carton, appropriation measures will be introduced in corn belt state legislatures next winter for the purpose, backed by the various state departments of agriculture on the theory it is more economical to fight the borer away from home than to await its advance.

PASTEURIZATION As A Safeguard To Public Health

Milk is absolutely essential to the physical development of children and the health of adults. This is now a fully determined fact. Inasmuch as milk is a vital food for which there is no substitute it is imperative that safe milk be available at all times for the public.

What Pasteurization Is

Pasteurization of milk has been defined by the United States Department of Health in the various cities and states as the process by which milk is held for 30 minutes at temperatures ranging from 142 to 145 degrees fahrenheit and thereafter immediately cooled. This process does not take any of the essential elements out of the milk and does not in the least affect its fresh, rich flavor. Neither does pasteurization destroy all the natural helpful organisms such as lactic acid bacteria present in the milk. It is a simple process for making milk safe. Demand it in the milk you use.

What Proper Pasteurization Does

Proper pasteurization destroys any pathogenic organisms which might be present in milk and those bacteria causing tuberculosis, typhoid, scarlet fever and diphtheria. Surveys have definitely proved that pasteurization has very largely reduced the infantile death rates caused by intestinal disturbances.

SUTTON-WOODWARD

WEDDING WEDNESDAY

Her girlish beauty enhanced in her bridal gown of white crepe de chine and her veil of tulle, Miss Mildred Louise Sutton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sutton, was united in marriage with Mr. Samuel Robert Woodward, Dayton, at the home of her parents, S. Columbus St., Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Seventy-five guests were received to witness the wedding by Mr. and Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. W. C. Sutton. The bride's mother wore white georgette and an orchid corsage.

Miss Florence Hartsook, Spring Valley sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me" before the ceremony. She was accompanied by Miss Gertrude Hochwalt, Dayton, who played the wedding march from Lohengrin and continued soft strains during the ceremony. Miss Hartsook wore blue tulle and white georgette and Miss Hochwalt wore peach georgette over satin.

The bridal procession was led by the ring bearer, the bride's handsome young brother, "Dick" Sutton, dressed in a white linen suit and bearing the rings in a rose. Next came the dainty flower girl, Judith Dice, dressed in pink tulle and carrying a basket of flowers.

The maid of honor, Miss Martha Lou Cramer, Dayton, walked alone. She wore pink georgette over satin, with a band of rhinestones in her hair. Her slippers and hose were silver, and she carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses.

The bride entered with her father who gave her in marriage. Her gown was fashioned with the flared skirt and tight bodice, the scalloped hem caught with ruffled rosettes. The skirt hung long on the sides and shorter in front. Her bouquet was formed in a shower of Angelus roses, valley lilies and orchids. Her veil, caught with orange blossoms, formed a train.

The bride party was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his bestman, Mr. Philip Sutton, brother of the bride and the officiating clergyman, the Rev. F. W. Stanton, First M. E. Church.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized in the bower arranged in the archway dividing the living room and library. The house decorations combined pink and white, many varieties of lovely bloom being employed, with potted ferns and palms.

Refreshments were served after the ceremony. The bride's table was laid in the library, seating twelve. The centerpiece was formed by the huge wedding cake, with corsages at each girl's cover. Bonquets centered the other tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward left Wednesday night on a motor trip north. They will spend part of the time at the W. C. Sutton cottage, at Waterbury Resort, and will go on to Toledo and other points.

GETTING RICH IN LITERATURE

One has only to read current periodicals to get the idea that very little in the form of education or special fitness is necessary to make a success in literature, especially in short story writing or the production of scenarios.

The large number of so-called schools and individuals who are engaged in the business of teaching how to write for the literary market would indicate that there are plenty of folks gullible enough to take the advertisers at their word.

Just enough persons succeed in story writing to make it easy for many others to be deceived into the belief that they need only to take a few lessons by mail order to be able to write stories that will set the editors of the magazines hot on their trail for new masterpieces.

The same scheme is adopted in inducing persons to submit musical compositions, the authors of which are touted as coming composers of unquestioned ability and reputation—all for the purpose of getting a fat fee for placing the musical efforts on the "market."

It usually is the case that persons who advertise to help others to fame and fortune through short story writing have a book to sell, or a series of lessons at a stiff price, all guaranteed to make editors of magazines and periodicals open their publications to their students' efforts.

Reading the advertisements that appear in many publications, one would think that the only requisite to becoming successful in writing, in newspaper correspondence, in cartoon work, or almost any other activity that is supposed to require special fitness, is to take a few lessons from the advertisers. Disappointment too often follows efforts to gain fame in this manner.

GETTING WHAT ONE WANTS

One of the thoughts emphasized by some psychologists, is that it is usually possible for people to get somewhere near what they want in this world. If people fail to attain their ends, it would be held that it is because they have failed to concentrate on them sufficiently and intelligently.

Of course reasonable limits would be admitted to this principle. If a commonplace young man sets out to be a millionaire, the chances are against him, even if he makes a big effort.

And yet it is true that if people will establish a certain object for their efforts, and work strenuously and intelligently to accomplish the same, they can commonly accomplish that purpose to some extent. But they must work hard, and they must understand and play the rules of the game. The hard work alone will not get them there, unless they show some special intelligence. One must have a certain degree of knowledge and sense to succeed in anything.

The majority of people accomplish only mediocre results, because they do not concentrate enough on their aims. If they set out for business success, they allow side issues to take up too much of their time, and their attention is dissipated.

The possibilities resulting from intelligent effort by anyone of average intelligence are very considerable. But people must somehow manage to show a thorough grasp of the situation they have to deal with.

Intelligence is not necessarily a special gift which comes to only a few. It comes commonly as the result of people being very wide awake, studying their work, making keen observations of the ways of the people and the characteristics of the kind of thing they are handling. They must fit themselves for large responsibilities and prove that they are capable of meeting them, so that someone in a position to give them promotion will conceive the idea that they have exceptional ability.

WHO WOULD GO BACK?

Americans can live on four hours labor a day, says Prof. Thomas N. Carver, of Harvard, if they live as they did fifty years ago. If they live up to present standards they must work eight or more hours a day.

That most people prefer the longer working day and the higher living standards is self-evident. Given the choice, few would sacrifice their luxuries and modern mode of living for a shorter working day.

What would it mean to go back to the standard of living of a half century ago?

There were no telephones, automobiles, electric lights, few trains and cars, no modern heating systems, more oil lamps than gas lights and many candles used for house illumination, no radios, cameras, phonographs and player pianos. Even the bicycle with chain drive was not introduced until 1834 and pneumatic tires were an innovation in 1890.

SOME NEW APRONS

The increasing popularity of electrical appliances which enable the housekeeper to cook at the dining table, has brought about a demand for dainty, out-of-the-ordinary aprons. The "chafing dish apron" has been an institution for many years; but now we have the "waftle iron apron," the "electric grill apron" and the breakfast apron which the fastidious housekeeper dons when she makes toast on her electric toaster in the morning, and coffee in her percolator. Here are some of the new models which I have lately seen for these uses:

Scrim Waffle Apron: This was made simply of a piece of scrim sixteen inches square, smoked onto a scrim strip (which formed the ties in the back), the smocking done in red, yellow and blue mercerized cotton, with a foreign peasant effect. Returned cotton was used to buttonhole the scrim square at sides and bottom edge, and the same cotton (all three colors) were used in cross-stitch to embroider three small waffles across the lower part of the square. The effect was very pretty and dainty.

Wash-Silk Grill Apron: White wash-silk was used to form the square. In this case, lavender inch-wide old-fashioned "pinked" or picot-edged ribbon slightly gathered, had been cut in half lengthwise and used to decorate the edges at sides and bottom, and also run across the top of the pocket. The cut edge of the ribbon was covered, on the under side of the apron, by silk binding tape, machine-stitched in place. This simple apron would be most effective if worn with a lavender dress. Or the maker could choose a "pinked" ribbon, for the decoration, which matched one of her dresses of some other color.

Breakfast Apron: Like the others above described, this was also a waist-apron. It was made of yellow dimity, in a solid color, square-shape. A patch pocket in a yellow-and-lavender-pattern (floral) was made in the shape of a tea cup, buttonholed in place. A strip of the same gay cretonne about two inches wide decorated bottom and sides of the dimity square, and the ties and waist-band were also of this cretonne. Tomorrow—Contributed Recipes.

The Theatre

"Broadway's approval is the measure of a play's success, because Broadway is the theater's highway which all feet tread in search of amusement," says Rachel Crothers, author of "A Lady's Virtue." "The rich, the poor—the intellectual and the ignorant, highbrow, lowbrow, artist and layman, old and young, fastidious and the gross—all must go to Broadway for their theater. Out of this conglomeration of minds and tastes a judgment sifts which is fair because it is the decision of a heterogeneous mass of people."

"From the most vulgar and banal, disgusting and panders to the vulgar tastes of the public, Mrs. Barrymore returned to New York from Hollywood, where she and her husband have a beautiful home. 'We love the theater,' said Mrs. Barrymore, 'but I can see how anyone can blame actors or actresses who stick to the films when the stage demands that they lower themselves and do and say such coarse and common things. There is nothing like that in motion pictures. The present trend of the stage is coarse in the extreme. That is not true of pictures.'"

Towering thirty-five stories above Broadway at Times Square, the new Paramount Theater, now in course of construction, will be the biggest theater in the world. The observation tower and great clock look down upon the theater center of the world. Thirty-three stories of the building will be given over to offices, the Famous-Players-Lasky Corporation occupying the entire space from the fourth to the twelfth floors inclusive. The building is costing $10,700,000, the structure occupying the entire block fronting on Broadway between 43rd and 44th Sts.

Mrs. Lionel Barrymore, who was known as Irene Fenwick on the stage, says she doesn't blame actors who forsake the speaking stage for the silver sheet, because the modern stage has become so tombs at present in excellent state of preservation. Their desecration is due entirely to natural properties in the soil.

Several explanations of the phenomenon have been advanced, but the most credible one is that put forward by Professors P. V. Zecchini and A. G. Parli of Padua in 1861. According to them, the earth of the tombs finds itself to the generation of hydrogen-carbonate gas, which, affecting the bodies, envelops them in a parasitic mould, called "Hippa Bombicina" that absorbs the humors of the body and produces mummification.

ON
Greene County History

FIRE DEPARTMENT

History of Xenia's Fire Department falls into five periods: First, the period when the city had no department; second, the period when there was only a bucket brigade, this lasting until 1837 or 1838; third, the period of the famous hand-pump days, when the water was pumped by hand power; fourth, the period of the "steamers," engines which threw water as it had never been thrown before in the city; and fifth, the period since the installation of the present system of waterworks.

Little is known of the fire department prior to 1837. Just fifty years before that time—1837—the state legislature passed an act allowing Xenia to borrow $5,000 to purchase fire-fighting apparatus and build an engine house.

The house stood on the northwest corner of the public square the city having a lease of a strip eighty feet wide across the north side of the square.

This was removed in the 50's and the fire house was then located on Green St. where it remained for many years.

Subsequently a provision was made for two fire-engine houses, or fire stations, one on Whiteman St. and the other at Cincinnati Ave. and Second St., since discarded.

The present fire station on E. Main St. was completed in June, 1914, at a cost of $12,500. The second station, then known as No. 1, was an old brick structure, formerly used as a cooper shop, built before the Civil War. It is still standing. It was donated to the city for use as a fire station by Mr. Maynor.

The equipment of Station No. 1 included a ladder truck and one hose wagon. A hose wagon and chemical wagon were used at No. 2 station. There were four horses at No. 2 and two at No. 1.

East Side - West Side

—OF—

New York

By Jack O'Donnell

The race track season and the sucker season are synonymous in this city of sharps and flats.

When the races open on Long Island in the spring the slickers who follow the races come up from the South, Cuba and Mexico to live by their wits in the American metropolis. Glib of tongue, imaginative and excellent psychologists, in their own fashion, they find plenty of material on which to work in this mecca of mutts. As a rule, these slickers work in pairs and the "middle class" hotels are their stamping grounds. Here they find strangers from the hinterland, unversed in the ways of the city slicker, gullible, in funds.

In one way or another they scrape up an acquaintance—a feat made easy by the fact that the average newcomer to New York is, perhaps, lonely and glad to talk to someone, especially if that someone appears to be a stranger like himself, is congenial and is stopping at the same hotel. And, take it from me, the slickers always are talky and congenial, even if they have only an imaginary room at the hotel.

About the second day the newcomer and his chance acquaintance are together the slicker is approached by another man, his pal, who acts in a mysteriously important manner. He calls his pal aside and whispers something in his ear. The other, aloud, thanks him profusely and then returns to his friend from the country.

"Just got an inside tip on the races," he confides. "That chap is an old friend of my father. He owns a string of horses and he has one running this afternoon which is sure to win. I'm going to bet a couple of hundred on it. That's the way to make money in this town—be on the inside."

If the man from the hinterland doesn't come to the front with a request to be "let in on the killing," the slicker doesn't urge him; in fact he will say no more about it until after the races when he will flash a phoney bank-roll and carelessly remark: "Made a big clean-up on that tip today. Hoss won at 20 to 1."

The sight of that inflated bank-roll naturally whets the appetite of the intended victim and nine times out of ten he will ask to be let in next day when his new-found friend gets another tip from the same source. If and when he does the slicker doesn't appear anxious to have him bet but says: "All right, if you wish to make a bet I'll be glad to place it for you. How much do you want to wager? I'm going to put down five hundred."

If the victim turns over only $100 the slicker feels well paid for his time, parts of three days. He pockets the money, of course, and the sucker never sees him again.

All of which once led Damon Runyon to remark: "You can take a hick out of the country but you can't take the country out of a hick."

There is a sports writer in this town who is making the gambling fraternity happy. This writer devotes most of his time and servings to the prize ring. He picks the fighters who, he believes, will win. He is wrong so often that the gamblers "copper his bets" (bet on the one he thinks will lose) and they win so often that they are happy.

Today's Talk

SERVE YOURSELF AND SAVE

In walking down the street the other day I came across a sign which read: "CAFETERIA, Serve yourself and save."

I was struck by this significant sub-line. I thought: If we would only serve ourselves more we would save in a thousand ways.

Of course, when you serve yourself, you serve others, for you inspire in them that incentive which alone is essential for all success or happiness. We must educate ourselves. We must fortify ourselves. We must prepare ourselves as fine instruments that others may have the use of us.

Serve yourself—and you save. Nothing is truer. For the things you gain by your own efforts stay by you and become a part of you. And yet you may keep giving away what you have accumulated—and still be very rich.

There are those who are so afraid that they will do some thing for themselves that they are unable to do anything for anyone else. The millionaire delights in giving away to worthy causes, first had to get that wealth for himself.

And there is the other side. When you serve someone else you always serve yourself—and also save. You save a loyal friend in whom there is a world of wealth—an intermixture of faith, inspiration and love.

And if you get the habit of serving yourself, you know what you know. You are not dealing in something second hand. You are ate from what you discover. You put it out at interest. You get a profit but the principal is spread out.

Serve yourself—and save. And it is best that you figure it out in your own mind just how you can save most and serve best.

Findlay Trotter Lowers Track Record On Fair Card

GOOD RACING MARKS PROGRAM; RAMBLER WINNER OF FEATURE

One Record Smashed, Another Threatened Here Wednesday

The good trotter, A. Z., a sorrel gelding, by Allie Johnson, owned by Garrett Wilkoff, Findlay, O., and driven by Pyle, dominated the opening day's races at the Greene County Fair Wednesday afternoon and was an easy winner in straight heats in the 2:20 trot in what developed into the feature offering of the card. The race was worth $350.

A. Z. was apparently in a running frame of mind and established what is believed to be a track record for trotters for the mile for the local track in the second heat. In setting a new mark for the distance he traveled the route in 2:12 1-2, at least three-quarters and possibly a full second better than any previous mark in the opinion of the judges. The former mark and the horse that made it were not remembered.

There was never any doubt about the winner in each heat and this apparently unknown trotter made a run-away race of the event. A. Z. forged into the lead at the start of each heat and drew away decisively thereafter. At no stage of any heat was the winner seriously threatened. The worthy, b. s., by The Exponent, owned and driven by George Teare, Cleveland, O., placed second in the standing and Judge Leonard, br. g., by Chestnut Peter, with Godard up, took third money.

Rambler, blk. g., by Walter Cochato, owned by J. D. Hensley, Daleville, Ind., and driven by Walters, was returned the winner in the 2:12 pace for the Greene County Hardware Co. $500 purse, the closing race and intended as the feature number on the card.

Rambler won in straight heats but in each heat came from behind to win in rousing stretch finishes. His marks of 2:09 1-4 for the first two heats were but a full second slower than the local track record for the distance.

Orion and Brook Volo, as was expected, forced the pace, but Walters was content to rate Rambler along back in third or fourth place, but she was always striking distance.

Walters could have always increased his winning margin had he so desired but stayed with the field until the last eighth, when he brought the horse to the wire first in spirited finishes. The others challenged every time but tired badly.

Billy Ormonde, blk. g., by Russell Ormonde, an entry of J. M. Beltz, Buford, with Crawford up, accounted for the opening event, the 2:25 pace for a $300 purse, by winning in an extra heat three-cornered race from Van Lou and Homer McKinney.

Billy Ormonde annexed the opening heat and then finished third and fourth while Homer McKinney took the second and Van Lou the third. The final heat, as anticipated, was a slow affair. The winner came under the wire a head in front but had to be aroused to outstay Van Lou as the latter closed fast and almost overhauled the leader. Homer McKinney did not try to win and remained in the background throughout.

The weather was oppressively hot for the sport but a brisk wind at intervals brought a measure of relief and the surprisingly large first day crowd thoroughly enjoyed the sport. The particularly heavy downpours of rain over the week-end and Monday night did less damage to the track than was expected. The rains merely beat down the top soil and then drained off rapidly until the track was in a lightning fast condition.

Child-birth

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend." Mrs. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes. Use 'Mother's Friend' as our mothers and grandmothers do. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradford Regulator Co., Bk. 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. 'Mother's Friend' is sold by all drug stores—everywhere."

TRACK NOTES

A. S. Beaulieu, of Logansport, Ind., is the new starting judge at the fair this year and the choice of the fair management was never in doubt. Mr. Beaulieu possesses a deep, far-carrying voice and is absolutely fair and impartial in his judgment. He was instantly liked by the judges and race fans alike. He had little trouble in getting the fields away in good shape and ran the ten heats off in record time which was appreciated by all as the afternoon was uncomfortably hot.

Most of the well-known judges and timers of other years were back at their accustomed places in the judging stand again on the opening day. The judges include W. B. Bryson, Xenia, presiding judge; Harry McFeeley, Dayton, and W. L. Marshall, Columbus. William Dodds, this city, Dan Ulrich, Logansport, and C. A. Weaver, Xenia, acted as timers. C. M. Austin, president of the fair board, J. Robert Bryson, secretary and Brant U. Bell, treasurer, were other officials in the stand.

The outstanding performance of A. Z. in lowering the track trotting record in the middle heat of the 2:20 trot was the leading topic for conversation among racing officials Wednesday. A. Z., a new comer and unheard of before, stepped the distance in the record time of 2:12 1-2, thought certain to be a new mark. This was the prevailing opinion of the judges, a majority of whom have acted as officials at the local fair for many years.

Frank A. Cares, Fremont, O., reinsman, is racing the fast pacing mare, Jane R. (2:05 1-4) by Tregantle (2:09 1-4) over the half-mile tracks for her owners. Morris and Fallor, of Lima, and has entered the horse in the Free-For-All Pace, Friday. This veteran pacer is now eligible to the 2:10 pacing events on half-mile tracks, and as she has raced in 2:06 on these courses more than once, she ought to be a considerable winner this season, at least one authority says. Her performance Friday will be watched with interest. Atto, (2:06 1-4), is another late entry in the Free-For-All event.

With the arrival of the first of August, harness horse racing will gain in prominence with the fair season on in full swing in the Middle States. This week, the trotters and pacers, besides performing at the local fair, will at

GLAD TO SPREAD GOOD NEWS

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—The friends of Mrs. Helen M. Kowalczyk of 6819 Hope Avenue, were glad to hear that she has regained her health. For quite some time Mrs. Kowalczyk was quite ill and it was impossible for her to work. She took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build her up. After she had started taking it, she wrote to the Pinkham Company as follows: "I certainly boost Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel stronger already and sleep sounder. I am very glad to spread the good news of how it has helped me."

"Happy to Recommend Pinkham's" Detroit, Michigan.—"I heard of this medicine through an advertisement in the 'Detroit News' and wrote to Mrs. Grace Gillem, whose letter was published. Then I started taking the Vegetable Compound and got the best results. I used the Sanative Wash, too. I am really happy if I can advise women to take your medicines."—Mrs. M. E. so show at Bucyrus, O., and Oshtemo, Muncie and South Bend, Ind. The Xenia fair is showing the way in Ohio.

Another Xenia-owned horse received the opportunity to show his worth Thursday afternoon. There is a dearth of Greene County-owned horses entered in the fair this year but Northern Bld. br. g., by The Northernman, owned by Dr. L. C. Addison, Xenia, was expected to supply the deficiency by coming through in the 2:17 trot for which he was entered, Thursday.

Silver Pointer, Jim Faulkner's gray pacer, that made a disappointing showing in the 2:12 pace Wednesday, will have another chance to make good in the Free-For-All Pace Friday but will meet with more sturdy competition than in the race in which he wound up fifth in the final standing.

FREE PACE FEATURE OF FRIDAY CARD AT COUNTY FAIR RACES

The short ship circuit meet at the Greene County Fair will close Friday afternoon with the running of three events, the Free-For-All Pace, the 2:25 trot and the 2:18 pace.

The Free-For-All Pace for the Nat Hunter $500 purse is conceded to be the feature offering and there is a strong possibility that the local track record may be lowered.

This event, with twelve entries, has a good band of nominations. A number of entrants have gone the distance in 2:06 or better on half-mile tracks. The local track record is variously thought to be 2:08 1-4 and 2:08 1-2.

A purse of $300 has been hung up for the 2:25 trot which has twenty-two entries. The 2:08 pace for a $350 purse has twenty-nine tentative starters.

Friday will bring together the largest fields of the three-day meet so Starter A. S. Beaulieu will have his work cut out for him on the closing day.

Entries in the Free-For-All pace follow: Orion, John W. Gurt, Columbus; Billy K., Jay Douglas, Oxford; Silver Pointer, James Faulkner, Xenia; Myrtle Simmons, West and Turney, Wauson; Dorothy B., R.

W. Pitkins, Mt. Vernon; Harry Forbes, Harry Wood, Mechanicsburg; Symbol S. Forrest, Pine Grove Stock Farm, Tarboro, N. C.; Rambler, J. D. Hensley, Daleville, Ind.; Charles C. Jay Douglas, Oxford; Peter Brown, R. W. Pitkins, Mt. Vernon; Jane R., Frank A. Cares, Fremont, and Atto, (2:06 1-4).

Entries in the 2:25 trot follow: Tommy Axworthy, Fred Beddies, Dayton; Fern Worthy, C. G. Where Did She Get That Graceful Figure?
You remember her of course—not so long ago she was a regular scare crow—skinny is a mild word for the way she looked. Just look at her now—if ever a woman had a perfect figure she has it—she is the envy of half the girls in town. It's nothing to get excited about—all she did was to take on weight—filled out the hollows in face, neck and chest—any skinny weak, run down woman can do the same and gain a clean clear complexion at the same time. Just get 60 McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets for 60 cents at Sayre's Drug Store or any drug-gist anywhere—Take two after each meal and two at bedtime and if any excessively thin woman, or man either for that matter, doesn't gain at least five pounds in thirty days! Why! Money back. One very thin woman gained ten pounds in twenty-two days. Ask for McCoy's. —Adv.

MUELLER Furnacette

Wouldn't you rather look after one Furnacette than two or three heating stoves?

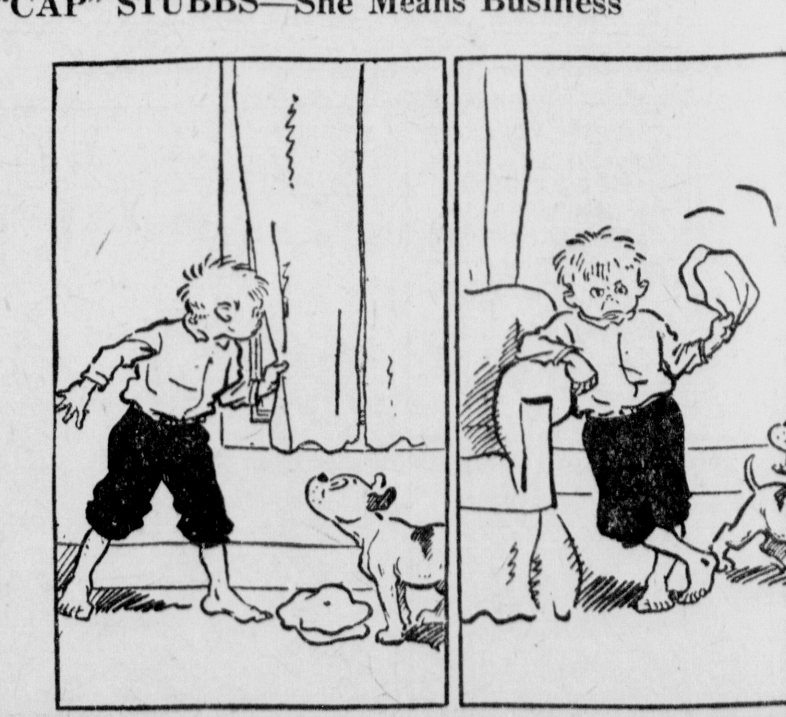

The Mueller Furnacette gives more comfortable and more uniform heat than any stove, has a heating capacity equal to two or three ordinary stoves, and yet uses no more fuel than one.

The Furnacette is the most economical of all heaters from the standpoint of heat produced from fuel burned. It heats the whole house comfortably—by air circulation like a warm air furnace—not by radiation, like a stove.

And it's a handsome addition to your living room, at the same time! Convenient Monthly Payments.

"Not Possible To Classify" By Mack Sauer

Now the politician's telling all his reasons and his whys, and all the time he's yelling there are tear drops in his eyes. Oh, he says if he's elected, every wrong will be corrected, and all those with him connected will help to share his pie.

Though we're garbed in clothes of toll and our hands are calloused rough, though we plow and hoe the soil, still they hand us out their stuff; when they meet us, they adore us and they start to making o'er us as they hand us out phosphorus for the cigars that we puff.

Oh, this planet is a beauty when the politicians throng, for they do their rightful duty, as they should their whole lives long; and the world is made sadder by the clever office cleaner, and it sets us feeling keener when we hear their line of song.

But when all the votes are counted and campaigners quit their beats, then a great change will be noted in the stores and on the streets; for the boys who hugged our shoulders, who dispatched us cards and folders, though we lived among the boulders, will not greet us when we meet. And the hand that shook our mitten won't be handed after that, we'll be like some homeless kitten shunned by some old family cat; and the wrongs that need be righted more than likely will be slighted, for our friends get oversight when in office at the bat.

So when the politicians glitter with a smile that makes us glad, let's demand that when they twit'er of the training that they've had; let's remember public duty calls for more than some patuta with a backbone like a cootie who thinks politics a fad.

Come let's vote for men to serve us who are qualified and right, everybody cast his ballot so that on election night, we'll have men with colors showing, who are sure the way they're going, who are up, alert and growing, and who'll work with all their might.

The Gilded Rose

By May Christie

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN RIDGEWAY learns of her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.

FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out. Rosilyn loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with Lydia Harbrook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying.

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to dinner.

She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together, while she will be with her beloved Landis.

Landis, finding himself alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more. Some hours later that evening, Rosilyn who is bewildered to find herself spending the evening in the company of Rupert Briscoe, sees her husband dancing with Lydia—in his eyes a look of rapture. She believes he has seen her but is too rude—or ashamed—to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a nightclub, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

In Paris Van Vorst, realizing the reason for Lydia's sudden trip to America and hungering for her love, decides to use Marietta, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a plan. These two arrange to come to New York where Marietta is to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

Long after Rosilyn's return home Lydia, by a clever ruse persuades Landis to take her for a taxi ride to Jersey. There in the early dawn speeding through the country side his old infatuation asserts itself and he gathers the girl in his arms.

CHAPTER XXXVIII
Landis Leaves
The suite was wrapped in silence when Landis entered it. In the tiny entrance-hall, a subdued light burned.

Like a man intoxicated, he stumbled into the sitting-room where daylight filtered through the shaded windows.

Had Rosilyn returned? Was she asleep?

What would she think of this evening's work?

Well, wasn't it her own fault, for not turning up at the proper rendezvous? Hadn't she practically pushed him into Lydia Harbrook's arms?

And anyhow—come to think of it—what right had she to criticize his actions? She had as good as confessed to him that she had entered on this marriage contract solely for her own advancement.

Briscoe and she between them had evidently arranged to dine alone somewhere, and so had 'let him down'.

Tripping over a footstool or cushion, he stifled a curse, his nerves on edge.

Somewhere inside, a still small voice was whispering:—

"Landis Ridgeway, you are weak and vacillating! Lydia has got back into her coils! Can't you see a man, and play the game with this unfortunate child who is your wife?"

He strode across the room and drew the curtains, flinging the windows wide. The soft air blew against his forehead.

Throbbing minutes passed. Then, quietly, he went to his wife's closed door, tried the handle and found it locked.

His lips curled whimsically. "Not wanted here."

Odd that she should have locked her door tonight! He had never crossed the threshold of that room, nor would he. They had their little "understanding."

But the insinuation was something of an insult, wasn't it? As though he were a cad.

She evidently feared him and mistrusted him. No doubt, too, she was angry.

She would be angrier still—make jealous scenes, maybe—if by any chance she heard of the magic motor-ride with Lydia Harbrook.

But he had forgotten that she didn't care for him. On their wedding night she very definitely had told him so. A 'marriage of convenience'—on one side his social prestige—on the other her newly inherited wealth. A fair bargain, wasn't it?

And yet—

He couldn't sleep here in the suite, somehow. In his present frame of mind, with the knowledge of the last few hours whirling like a delicious but forbidden dream inside his consciousness, he couldn't linger within the radius of his wife's presence—in the expensive rooms her money paid for—as her guest!

Lydia!

Enchantment!

Stolen ecstasies!

Delight!

He lifted his hat and coat from the rack in the little hallway, and let himself out of the hotel suite quietly, walking down the four flights to the street. Neither his coming nor his going had been remarked by the night porter, who was somewhere in the kitchen regions, looking for refreshment.

"I'll get a bath and a couple of hours' sleep at the Club," reflected young Ridgeway as he strode away, the cool air blowing on his forehead.

How the hotel suite had stifled him! How the sudden consciousness of Rosilyn's money had pressed him down!

To have been bought—been trapped—by a girl's wealth!

It was humiliating. Nay, more, it was contemptuous!

No link, beyond the legal tie, existed that could bind them. What had the pair in common?

Not a single thought!

Tonight's companionship with Lydia had shown him, clearer than anything since his wedding day, what an insufferable bond the whole thing was.

It was significant of the latent generosity of Landis' character that not for one single moment

did he blame his mother and her machinations.

He cursed himself for a traitorous cad, a paltry hanger-on.

In this mood his club was reached. He bathed and shaved and then lay down in the hopes of wooing fugitive slumber.

But the noises of the waking city roused him. And with the rush of day, and a fuller realization of his queer, anomalous position, misery settled on him like a pall—misery that did not lift until, about eleven o'clock he was summoned to the telephone and the thrill of Lydia Harbrook's voice, so gentle and cajoling that a man's pain must melt before its magic!

GAS BUGGIES or HEM AND AMY—Farewell, America!

THE FEELING OF RELIEF EXPERIENCED BY THE STOCKHOLDERS, WHEN HEM ANNOUNCED THE FIRST DIVIDEND BY PETRIFFED GAS, WAS MILD IN COMPARISON WITH THAT OF TWO FAMILIAR-LOOKING FIGURES WHO WATCHED THE SHORE-LINE OF THE UNITED STATES REcede IN THE DISTANCE.

WELL, PROFESSOR WISE! WE'LL SOON BE AT SEA. IT'S GOOD-BYE, LAND OF LIBERTY. IT WOULDN'T BE THE LAND OF LIBERTY FOR US IF WE HUNG AROUND HERE A COUPLE OF DAYS LONGER, EH, PROFESSOR? IT'S TOO BAD WE CAN'T TAKE THEM ALONG! I'M SURE HE'D RATHER BE AT SEA THAN SING-SING.

PST!—EASY— WE DON'T KNOW WHO'S AROUND US. IT'S THE LAND OF LIBERTY WITH OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY, DR CHILLYMIT, AND AS FOR HEM, HE'LL BE ALL AT SEA WHEN HE GOES TO PAY THOSE DIVIDENDS.

YOU SAY WE WON'T TOUCH LAND TILL WE REACH SOUTH AMERICA, CAPTAIN! WELL, THAT SUITS ME. THERE'S NOBODY ON SHORE THAT I'M PARTICULARLY ANXIOUS TO MEET RIGHT NOW—

YOU SEE, CAPTAIN, PROFESSOR WISE IS TRAVELLING FOR HIS HEALTH. AS HIS PERSONAL PHYSICIAN, I PRESCRIBED A SEA TRIP SO HE'D HAVE MORE FREEDOM. HIS WORK WOULD'VE KEPT HIM TOO CLOSELY CONFINED HAD HE REMAINED AT HOME.

WELL, COLDGRIP! HERE'S TO THE THIRTEENTH MILE. NOW I CAN TURN IN. I'LL SLEEP LIKE A LOG TONIGHT. WE NEEDN'T WORRY ABOUT ANY COPS RINGING OUR DOOR BELL.

I WISH NOW I'D PICKED OUT ANOTHER DISGUISE. ALEC, MY MUG GETS PRETTY WARM WEARING THIS MATTRESS ALL DAY. I'VE GOT TO IMPROVE MY TECHNIQUE AT LIGHTING CIGARS OR I'LL BE STARTING A BRUSHFIRE!
